Editorial

Here is the 2nd month of our new online newsletter. I hope you enjoy it. This seems like I will be able to keep up with it and have it posted before the end of each month. Although it is not as nice as being mailed to your home, I hope you enjoy it. I would hate to see our club without a newsletter.

This Month

Remember that the “Y” in Oak Hill and RMP Raceway still have their car meets every Saturday night.

Last Month

We introduced our first web-only newsletter. If any members would like to become the editor, the spot is still open.

Also, the annual “Freeze Your Buns Junk Yard Run” Was held. Chris Ryon recapped some of the events of the day and are on page 5 for your amusement.

Poor Mans Mechanic

"Another tip for the people that are looking for a way to convert the 4 inch bolt pattern on the front wheels to the 4-1/2" without changing out everything. This applies to drum brake cars only. Look for a drum brake AMC Gremlin. The bolt pattern is 4-1/2" and the bearings and hub will fit perfectly on the A-body spindle. Surprise, Surprise!....

Thanks -Bob Doty. "

Good Luck,
Dustin C.

New cars for PGR2 on show?

Xbox game kiosks at the 2004 North American International Auto Show are playing versions of Project Gotham Racing 2 featuring upcoming vehicles from the Chrysler Group.

The 2004 North American International Auto Show being held in Detroit this week sees three vehicle manufacturers using video games to promote their upcoming models. Jeep has created a game entitled 'Jeep Trail Rated 4x4: The Unlimited Challenge' to promote its Jeep Wrangler Unlimited, while both Chrysler and Dodge are showing enhanced versions of Project Gotham Racing 2 that allow players to test drive vehicles that won't be made available until 2005.

"Visitors to the auto show will be able to see the vehicles on display and then have an opportunity to take them for a thrilling ride in a race against other game players," said Julie Roehm, director of marketing communications, Chrysler/Jeep/Dodge. "Consumers will be able to virtually test-out each of the vehicles before they hit the dealer's showrooms."

Visitors to the Chrysler stand are able to race in the Chrysler 300C, while the version of Bizarre Creations' popular racer on display at the Dodge stand features the 2005 Dodge Magnum. The enhanced editions of the game on show have been created especially for the motor show, but it now seems likely that these vehicles may well be the first to appear in the empty Xbox Live showrooms that fans of Project Gotham Racing 2 so regularly walk around in vain, hoping that a bonus vehicle or two might have materialized since the last time they played.

We contacted Microsoft in an attempt to confirm that the first bonus vehicles for Project Gotham Racing 2 might be en route to the showroom, but at the time of writing we have nothing further to report. We'll bring you more on this story as soon as it becomes available. By Justin Calvert, GameSpot.com

January Freeze Your Buns Junk Yard Run

Thanks to Joe, Tim and Ed for coming out on Saturday morning. We had a nice drive to LaGrange and spent a sloshy morning rummaging through the old cars. It seemed none of us had a real list of required parts, but that didn't stop Joe from getting a couple of Dodge 100 badges for his truck or Ed from getting a third brake light for his project and a big heavy duty steel parts/filing cabinet for his resto parts. I think Tim got something too, but I don't remember what. I got nothing but some prices and the pleasure of hanging out with the boys, doing what I love to do.

The yard had lots of Mopars, that were much more spread out then I remembered. About half are pretty picked over, the rest are pretty decent, and lots of good sheet metal. Mostly A & B-bodies and Later C-bodies, with a lot of 70s trucks and vans. Several bigblock cars, even a 501 hemi they were willing to sell. They said the hemi wouldn't hold water any more though and the block had been welded back up after a rod was ejected from it during a tractor pull. But there it was, a stroked hemi, sitting in their shop and available, probably pretty cheap.

A good time was had and we were back in Austin shortly after 1:00.

Current Email & Internet Scams

As you may or may not know, email and internet scams are a big deal now days. You have to keep on your toes and not get taken to the cleaner by these malicious people. I wanted to go through one that could effect you and your car hobby.

Ebay/Paypal update: This one is an official looking email from either Ebay or Paypal that claims that you need to update you personal information for said site. The email provides a link that look like the real website, but it is not. What the scammers are trying to get is your credit card and user information. They will run up bills on the card and use your Ebay name to scam buyers and you get stuck.
